

Contributors

Article Contributors

Gwayaweng Lingwaku Kiki is an Associate Professor in Christian Education Ministry at Pasifika Communities University in Fiji with 12 years of experience in teaching and administration as Academic Dean at Martin Luther Seminary, Lae, Papua New Guinea and Pacific Theological College, Suva, Fiji. He holds a Doctor of Philosophy in Theology with a concentration in contextual and inter-cultural Education from Charles Sturt University, Canberra, Australia. His research interests and publications focus on a community-based approach to theological education that emphasises relational ontology for learning praxis within the context of the local community.

Faafetai Aiava is a Samoan-born theologian and pastor from the Congregational Christian Church and currently serves as Koi'mata-Kiki (Academic Dean) and Associate Professor at Pasifika Communities University in Fiji.

Marika Baleidelabaci is a Lecturer in History of Christianity at Pasifika Communities University and a minister in the Methodist Church of Fiji and Rotuma. His research interests are historiography, decoloniality, history of colonialism, empire Christianity, 'whole of life' and Pasifika indigenous historical method, Pasifika mission histories, history of Pasifika, and global ecumenism.

Supongmayang Longkumer is a senior lecturer in New Testament, Head of Biblical Studies Discipline, and Head of School (Acting) at the SOTE in Pasifika Communities University. He has nearly two decades of teaching and supervision experience and has dedicated seven years as Academic Dean. He is a distinguished holder and practitioner of Ao Naga indigenous knowledge, an indigenous hermeneuticist, an apocalyptic interpreter, and a communities-based researcher. The author and editor of four books and over 30 academic articles, his books include Subaltern Hermeneutics: A Festschrift for C. I. David Joy (2026) and The Apocalypse of John and its Subalterns: Implications for a Postcolonial Tribal Context (2019).

Brian Philip Dunn is Lecturer and Head of the History discipline at Pasifika Communities University, Fiji. Having lived in Zambia, Canada, the U.K., the U.S., and India, he brings intercultural, ecumenical, and interreligious experience to his work. He holds an MSt. in the History of Religions and a DPhil in Comparative Theology, both from Oxford University. His research focuses on the early Church Fathers, the history of global Christianity—including Indian and Pasifika Christianity—and Christian engagement with other religious traditions, particularly Hinduism, Buddhism, and Islam. He is the author of A. J. Appasamy and His Reading of Rāmānuja (OUP).

Apineru Lafai Tavita is a probationary minister of the Methodist Church of Samoa and a former lecturer at Piula Theological College. He is currently pursuing a PhD at Pasifika Communities University in Biblical Studies. He is married to Serafina Taoa and they have two daughters, Seti and Lina.

Joerg Rieger is Distinguished Professor of Theology and the Cal Turner Chancellor's Chair of Wesleyan Studies at Vanderbilt University's Divinity School. He is also the founding director of the Wendland-Cook Program in Religion and Justice. He received an M.Div. from the Theologische Hochschule in Reutlingen, Germany, a Th.M. from Duke Divinity School, and a Ph.D. in religion and ethics from Duke University. His work addresses the relation of theology and public life, reflecting on the misuse of power in religion, politics, and economics. His main interest is in developments and movements that bring about change and in the positive contributions of religion and theology.

Peter Walker (BA Hons, BTh, PhD) is the Principal of United Theological College, Sydney. He studied history and theology at the University of New South Wales, McGill University, and Charles Sturt University. He teaches Christology and Christian theology of religions and has research interests in Christian-Muslim relations and theologies of religious diversity. Peter is an ordained minister of the Uniting Church in Australia.

Book Reviews and Others

Nike Franken is a Master student of Theology at Augustana Divinity School, Neuendettelsau, Germany. She is currently doing a one-year exchange programme at Pasifika Communities University.

Eyingbeni Humtsoe-Nienu is a Professor of Christian Theology at United Theological College in Bangalore, Karnataka, India. She belongs to the Lotha tribal/indigenous ethnicity from the Northeast of India (NEI). She has served on the faculty of several theological colleges in the NEI region and as the principal in one of them. Her writings and research are largely on tribal/indigenous and subaltern theologies from India.

Nikotemo Sopepa is Head of the Ecumenism Discipline at the School of Theology and Ecumenism, Pasifika Communities University. He holds a MTh from Eden Theological Seminary in St. Louis, Missouri, USA and a Ph.D. from Pasifika Communities University. His areas of interest include the intersectionality of theology and politics, Pasifika philosophy and spiritualities, and the rereading of scriptures and theology through Pasifika hermeneutics and epistemologies. He is an ordained minister of the Ekalesia Kelisiano Tuvalu, and hails from the island of Kioa in Buca Bay, Cakaudrove, Fiji. He is married to Elmihner John and they have two children.